

The CCA Way

CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS IN MIDDLE TENNESSEE

It's the set of values that guides the way Corrections Corporation of America conducts business, involves employees and engages communities. The company – from our more than 65 correctional centers across the country in small towns, major cities and many destinations in between to our Nashville-based corporate headquarters – is committed to giving back.

In “CCA communities” from coast to coast, our employee-led Community Relations Committees regularly meet with local media representatives, nonprofit directors, civic leaders, elected officials and others. We build bridges; we share information; we are ethically-driven.

A foundation of integrity, respect, trust, teamwork and communication shape CCA's continued investment in the citizens of Middle Tennessee and across the nation. Our employees volunteer for various events, raise funds for nonprofit organizations and participate in other awareness-raising activities. And, on the corporate level, CCA's Charitable Contributions Committee gives back to organizations that also perform a needed public service to the people of Nashville and surrounding communities.

CCA proudly supports the mission and endeavors of the following Nashville-area organizations, to which we've contributed more than $780,000 over the past four years.
